

Wali Jones,
former Vice President of Community Relations for the Miami
Heat, will lead the clinics.
He is a leader in instructional clinics.

Mr. Jones' experiences include playing for the Villanova Wildcats and over 13 years in the NBA for the World Champion Philadelphia 76er's, the Milwaukee Bucks and the Detroit Pistons. He has designed these clinics to motivate and help young players attain fundamental skills required in today's high-competitive climate.

CLINIC GOALS

The clinic features human development training, emphasizing academics, problem-solving, refusal skills, self-concept, self-esteem and teamwork.

Players will work on fundamental skills through drills, viewing of films, some play and a foul-shooting contest.

Have fun while gaining a memorable and exciting experience.

CREATING A BRIGHTER FUTURE FOR TOMORROW

The Mental Health Association of Southwest Florida is dedicated to promoting mental health and achieving victory over mental illness through advocacy, education, prevention, and social action. Mental Fitness is as important as physical fitness. We provide a community resource of helping people of all ages to achieve mental health. We focus our resources on preventative action for children, families and individuals for which we actively advocate for quality mental health care. We remain responsive to the needs of the community and remain accountable to our members, donors, and volunteers for their stewardship of their gifts. Every year over 10,000 people turn to The Mental Health Association of Southwest Florida for answers. With the current global and economic turmoil we already have seen a great increase of people in need of our services. Our support groups are overflowing and our daily request for help have drastically increased.
